Q Television to Broadcast From Family Pride Week

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. – July XX, 2005 -- Q Television Network (OTCBB Other: QBID), the first 24/7 premium network for the gay and lesbian community, announced today that it will film an episode of In FoQus, hosted by Scott Withers, in Provincetown, MA the week of July 30th - August 5th for Family Pride Week, and Cheryl Jacques will cover stories for OnQLive. This year's celebration marks the 10th anniversary of the event.

The Family Pride Coalition is the only national non-profit organization exclusively dedicated to securing equality for lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender parents and their families. The Family Pride Coalition combined with COLAGE — the only national and international organization in the world specifically supporting young people with gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender parents — come together once a year for Family Week. This event is filled with opportunities for individuals to celebrate their own families and to make connections with other families. Family Week is packed with family activities including beach picnics, family dances, kite flying, sandcastle building, campfire sing-alongs, fun workshops, and more.

“Q Television has made a commitment to bring events that matter to the GLBT community into the homes of our viewers,” said Scott Withers, Executive Vice President of Live Programming at QTN. “As in the past, the week should be filled with many family activities, as well as opportunities to sign up for workshops and seminars. QTN is committed to covering the breadth and depth of our community, including families and parental rights. Covering all the events taking place during Family Pride Week is a very good example of this.”

About Q Television:

This 24/7 premium television network is organized to create, develop and feature television programming for the gay and lesbian community, including live & interactive content every weeknight, plus sports, information and entertainment. While the company expects much of its subscriber base to be comprised of members of the gay and lesbian population, management also believes that quality programming about the gay and lesbian experience, designed to entertain, educate and inform, will attract many other segments of the viewing public. The company's programming is available on a subscription basis to those desiring to subscribe. The network is telecast 24 hours per day, 7 days per week. Providing distribution via satellite ensures availability of the network across the United States, including Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico. Q Television Network is the official network of Gay Games® VII. The network is also ad-supported.
